ACADEMY BOARD TESTIMONY

“Being part of this global community has opened my eyes to the wonderful work happening around the world in the field of education.

One of the aspects I appreciated the most was the diversity of educational projects and ideas that were presented for review. From cutting-edge technology-driven solutions to grassroots community initiatives, there was a wide range of innovations to explore. Each project had a unique story and impact, and I found myself constantly amazed at the creativity and dedication of educators and changemakers from different corners of the world.”

NOVEMBER 2025

You are featured in the...

Global Collection 2026 Report

To be released November 11th, 2025

An annual report that outlines the upcoming trends in education innovation and showcases the 100 innovations chosen for this year's collection.

Findings

How has this year's Global Collection addressed needs we identified in last year's report?

1. Quality education for all

Equity, access, and inclusion drive innovations supporting marginalised learners globally, reflecting the shared commitment to reaching those children who are at the most risk of being left behind.

2. Teacher wellbeing and professional growth

Teacher wellbeing and growth gained attention through professional development, collaboration, workload reduction, and mental health support, yet remain underrepresented.

3. Innovative learning environments

Innovators are actively reimagining learning environments, developing diverse models and approaches that transform where and how learning takes place.

4. Climate resilience

Only a few selected innovations linked learning with resilience strategies, indicating that while sustainability is gaining traction, climate-resilient education systems remain an emerging and underrepresented area of innovation.

3. Digital citizenship

While EdTech tools and digital programmes are widely adopted, relatively few innovations explicitly address safe, ethical, and inclusive digital participation. This mirrors global policy debates: AI and digital tools are advancing rapidly, but much-needed guidance on digital responsibility lags behind.

What to look for in the 2027 Collection

As we look beyond 2026, the next set of pressing priorities are coming into view and we expect to see more innovations in the following focus areas:

- Teacher wellbeing and retention
- Education in emergencies
- Equitable and responsible use of AI

Testimonials from Global Collection Alumni

"Winning the prestigious HundrED education award wasn't just an honor for Franca Ma-ih Sulem Yong, it was a rocket booster for Afrogiveness. The recognition brought: Global validation: Highlighting Afrogiveness' unique approach to healing through arts, amplifying its impact and attracting new supporters. Increased visibility: Shining a spotlight on Franca's story and the movement's vital work, reaching more communities in need. Network growth: Connecting Afrogiveness with educators and changemakers worldwide, fostering potential collaborations and knowledge exchange. Resource boost: The award potentially provided financial support, enabling Afrogiveness to expand its reach and impact even further."

- Franca Ma-ih Sulem Yong, Afrogiveness Movement

"Global recognition from HundrED for MuktoPaath has significantly motivated us to work harder and ensure that we provide the ultimate e-learning experiences for our diverse learners across Bangladesh. The response we have received has been inspirational, affirming our contribution to the vision of Smart Bangladesh 2041 by creating Smart Citizens and accelerating the blended education ecosystem. We look forward to support from our global community to collaborate and achieve our broader goal of improving education worldwide."

- Md Afzal Hossain Sarwar, MuktoPaath

"HundrED's recognition ignited momentum for our POM initiative! The Vietnamese Ministry of Education and Training, our key partner in this innovation, echoed the excitement, sharing the news in professional meetings. The recognition also fuelled the passion of our team and our current provincial partners to continue our scaling journey in Vietnam. Additionally, it provided us a spotlight on the global education map and an opportunity to connect with inspiring education innovators, further igniting our journey to transform education together."

- Thi Kim Ly Tran, POM (VVOB)

Testimonials from Global Collection Alumni

"Being part of the HundrED Community has opened up a world of new friendships with amazing changemakers from all over the world. Just in the few months since the HundrED recognition we have collaborated with organizations in program design, learning engineering and technology integrations. It is such a gift to belong to a network of professionals of this caliber and commitment." - Nicole Swedlow, Compass Education - The Sustainability Compass

The recognition by HundrED has opened new doors to CAPS Network and expanded our view of what is possible. We now have incredible opportunities to collaborate across country borders on topics such as student agency and authentic learning strategies. More specifically, our partnership with HundrED generated a CAPS school affiliation in Kenya, a place we have never worked. We greatly appreciate this support, it feels like family. - Corey Mohn, CAPS Network

"Being part of Hundred for the third consecutive year has meant joy for the entire team. Joy that becomes motivation. Motivation that turns into a job well done. And work well done that turns into more and more schools cultivating a culture of peace with emotional literacy and Theater of Awareness."

- Pax Dettoni, In their Shoes: a space of Active Empathy

Our association with HundrED has grown and deepened over the years. We have collaborated with other innovators, met interesting experts, co-written articles, organised webinars and shared expertise/research with HundrED members thereby fostering a deep relationship of giving and sharing. I find the more you choose to participate, the more you benefit.- Simrat Mulchandani, Rangeet
